Molasses-Sugar House -Unnatural Parents and Innocent Children .- VINIOAR-"What's your name, sonny!" said we to a CANDLES Star, Mould, pretty little boy, about three years old, led by Brooms- Mould a little maid twice as old, in a neighboring town lately. The little fellow made no reply. Porarogs--Irish but on our seking him again he hung his head as if ashamed to tell, and at our third asking began to sob and cry as if his heart would break. We were neerly frightened out of our wits, for we didn't know but some jury might find us guilty of scaring him to death. "For mercy's sake, what ails him!" said we to his young companion; "what is his name!" "His name is Franklin Pierce , Towle," said she, her face turned crimson. Here was the mystery, and we did not wonder that the feltold him soothingly, there was "nothing in a name," and if there was, the first two words of his were father's fault and not his, and that he would soon be old enough to apply to the Legislature for charge of name. The latter statement relieves us, for he smiles through his tears, and soon looked as good natured as if we had not insulted him at all.—Exchange.
